HOW CUSTER BECAME A GENERAL.

One of the most striking things in the late General Custer's history was the rapidity of his rise in military rank. He was promoted at once from the rank of Lieutenant to that of Brigadier General, in recognition of the courage and skill which he showed in the fight at Aldie, Virginia. He had said to his companions, while yet only a lieutenant, that he would one day become a general officer, and they fell in to an annoying habit of bantering him on the subject in various ways. The story of his actual promotion is thus told by Frederick Whittaker, in his Life of General Custer, which Sheldon & Co., New York, will presently publish:

One evening, eleven days after Aldie, when Custer returned to headquarters, after a long ride, in which he had been posting the pickets of the entire corps for the night, he was greeted in the large tent, where the staff was wont to gather at night, by the salutations, "Hullo, General!" "How are you, General?" "Gentleman, General Custer?" "Why, General I congratulate you!" "You're looking well, General!" The greetings came from all quarters of the tent, where staff officers were lounging, smoking, chatting, laughing, telling stories. They impressed Custer as being merely a continuation of the usual ill-natured banter on the subject of his aspirations, and, further, as being carried a little too far. However, he had always been noted for his remarkable control over a hot and hasty temper, and he was not going to allow his comrades to laugh him out of it on this occasion. Still, it was with some bitterness that he answered:

"You may laugh, boys. Laugh as long as you please, but I will be a general yet, for all your chaff. You see if I don't, that's all."

He was greeted by a universal shout of laughter in answer. It seemed as if his tormentors were determined to irritate him into an explosion; and they nearly succeeded: for his blue eyes began to flash, and he looked around as if seeking some one on whom to fix a quarrel. His old friend Yates (afterwards Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel and captain of the Seventh United States Cavalry, and one of the little band of heroes who fell with Custer), whom he had been himself the means of putting on Pleasanton's staff, came to his relief with a few words:

"Look on the table, old fellow. They're not chaffing." He pointed to the table in the tent and there, in the midst, lay a large official envelope, and on it was written, "Brigadier-General George A. Custer, U. S. Vols." The reaction was instantaneous, and the young fellow was completely overcome. A moment later and all his comrades were gathered around him in real earnest, congratulating and shaking hands, while Custer, too much overpowered to speak, could only smile faintly, turn very pale, and his eyes full of tears, sink down in his chair, feeling very much as if he was going to make a fool of himself and cry. However, he regained his self-control in a few moments, and was able to thank his comrades, who were really in earnest this time, and after a while was permitted to read the orders which accompanied his commission, and which directed him to report to General Pleasanton for instructions.

There is said to be an old gentleman in England who has found the true elixir of life to be the food of infancy. He always has five wet nurses "on tap," and grows "fat and well liking" as he verges on centenarianism.

"I don't think I ought to pay that bill," said a man when his physician called on him for a settlement. "Why not?" "Because, doctor, you gave me so much medicine that I was sick a long time after you had cured me."

"Yesterday being a pleasant Sunday," says the Northwich Bulletin, "most of the boys who attended Sunday school big home a good many chestnuts which a kind man had given them."

A man's moral principles, like the dykes of Holland, need to be continually watched and strengthened. He is ruined if they are undermined or overthrown.

The thickest armor plate for vessels yet produced has just been rolled in Sheffield by John Brown & Co. It is twenty-four inches thick.

To PURIFY WATER.—Put a good sized piece of charcoal into a can of water; it will collect all the impurities. Wash it when the water is changed.

Wealthy ladies now have models of their figures by French artists, and leave them with their dressmakers.

Of what use is the rat to man? Well, not very much that we know of: yet a few items may be mentioned. Probably we must not attach much importance to the alleged prophetic powers of the rat—that if he gnaws a person's clothes, that person will speedily die; that if he suddenly quits a house, the house will very shortly be burned down; that if he deserts a ship, the ship is in a sinking state. A mill at Peabets was suddenly deserted by a whole colony of rats about twenty years ago; two hours afterward the mill was burned down. But it must be confessed that the logic is very weak which proves, from these facts, the possession of any prophetic power by Mr. Rat. We have evidence that he has sometimes been made useful as an R. E. or R. A. James, in his military dictionary, says: "Rats are sometimes used in military operations, particularly in enterprises for the purpose of setting fire to gunpowder. On these occasions a lighted match is tied to the tail of the animal. Marshal Vauban recommends, therefore, that the walls of powder magazines should be made very thick, and the passages for light and air so narrow as not to admit rats. We do not know whether a cruel sport can be called a new employment of rats; but an account is given of a strange proceeding at Rome. A large number of rats were dipped in spirits of turpentine, set on fire, and made to rush down an open flight of steps near the Vatican; they reached the bottom as masses of charred flesh, amid the shouts of the populace. Rats are worth three shillings a dozen, to furnish a supply to those brutal exhibitions in which rat-killing terrifies show their power. Rats are also caught for the value of their skins. There is a firm at Paris which buys the skin for this purpose. The fur is dressed into a very good substitute for beaver; while the pelt or membrane is dressed into leather so fine, elastic and close as to be used for the thumbs of the best gloves. If one believes that rats are not used for human food, he must change his opinion in Paris, the chiffoniers or bone-grubbers eat them. Gypsies eat such rats as are caught in stocks and barns, and are less strong in flavor and odor than those that feed omnivorously. In China, split rats are bought as dainties. An English surgeon of some note had them cooked for his own eating. In a man-of-war, where the sailor had a regular battle, and brought down numbers of them; Jack made a rat pie, baked it, and liked it. At the siege of Malta, the French garrison when famished, offered as much as a dollar a head for rats, or two dollars if barn-fed.

The worthy father presents his son, as a reward of merit for his progress at school, with a handsome gun, and allows the boy to make one of the hunting party. The ingenious youth spies a bar, fires at it, but, horror of horrors! his father, who has stooped to pick up a bird, rises at the very moment right in the line of fire, and is peppered. The boy casts down his fowling-piece and bursts into an agony of tears. They console him by representing that the author of his being fortunately wore buckskin breeches and escaped absolutely unharmed. "It is not that," sobbed the heart-broken child; "if he hadn't been there I would have killed the hare."

Martin Pine was tried in Henderson, Ky., for an assault, and the lawyer who defended him deemed it politic to say that he was cowardly. Mr. Pine publishes this card: "I would announce to the citizens of Henderson, and especially to a learned gentleman who pronounced me a coward before a jury, that if he will take the trouble to select his friend and repair on the other side of the river, the matter can easily be decided who is the greater coward of the two."

He had slipped on his coat and hat and got as far as the gate when his wife overhauled him. "I want you to help me take in the plants," she cried after him; "there'll be a frost to night."

"Let the plants go to pot," he snappishly responded, with a darkening face. Then he gave her a startled look, softly smiled, and she smiled, and then he returned.

A Burmese drama is a protracted enjoyment. The performance usually begins about 9 p. m., lasting until daylight, when an intermission is taken until night again. Four or five nights are often consumed in a single comedy. The Burmese families sometimes carry their beds to the theater with them.

"There is one thing about babies," says a late traveler; "they never change. We have girls of the period, men of the world, but the baby is the same self-possessed, fearless, laughing, voracious little beast in all ages and all countries."

ABOUT BEANS.

There are beans, and then there are beans! This is a dictum that we need not argue, in Yankee land, where the favorite vegetable is mis cooked in as many different ways as there are to make poor bread. We always sympathized in the jeremiad of the outspoken Gail Hamilton (what would have become of her if she had kept pent up for the past dozen years) over the decay of New England knuck, in modern days, in preparing the regulation Sunday morning breakfast. We believe she classed it with the most to be lamented of the Lost Arts. There are many manifestations of this loss; among which are the slippery, sloppy, yellow beans of the corner bakery—intact, globular, perversely individual, which no man is justified in guessing are either steamed, boiled or baked. It is a fundamental axiom in correct bean-baking, that no dish can be right that is "unmashed." A whole bean is a confession of failure in the cook. Then there are the baked beans of the restaurant; a dry, underdone, waxy, aggravating mess. A son of a Yankee, who will "make way with" a plate of the average eating-house beans, when he can get an apple-pie nine days old, or a sandwich that has been used for a sign not more than a week, is a degenerate scion. And then there are the "fashionable" baked beans: served in a shallow, dainty platter, more adapted to display the china than to do justice to the generous, historic dish—innocent of pork, bleached until they are flavorless, and then cooked to death. Beans cannot survive "style." It is as fatal to them as it is to spare-rib, or roast-oysters, or any of the good old-time luxuries. We have interviewed, specially for this occasion, a housekeeper whose baked beans are worthy of the renown of that ancestor of hers, who helped to flog the war of the Revolution by seeing to it that the soldiers home on furlough, or in adjacent camps, always had good rye-and-injun bread and baked beans fit for a patriot. And she says that the only secret about it is "to have them just right." You want to soak them over night, or parboil them in two or three waters until they are at the breaking point. If your appetite is not robust enough to eat pork and you have not enough to cook them without it; all that is required is to season the dish to the fine point of half a pinch of salt, a single shake of the pepper-box, and a lump of butter neither too large nor too small, and have a piece of fresh spare rib roasted separately to serve with them. The beans must also be of just the right consistency when put into the dish for baking. So far we believe, it is all clear. If you have stamina enough for pork, praise your ancestry and kind heaven; and put the sweet crisp-crooked piece of seasoning meat, with its possibilities of crisp rinds, in the centre of the dish, with a line ornamenting the sides. All you need of the oven is to have it "neither too hot nor too slow." The beans must then simmer until they are "just done." To secure the exact shade of brown over the top, and the precise degree of heat and moisture inside needed to bring each individual bean to the very point of cracking and coalescing with its neighbor—without entirely doing it—that is all the direction one needs as to baking. If it isn't clear, you must learn as the boy learns to swim. And then as to serving. It is the sign of an effete and over ripe social despotism to "dish out" a pan of baked beans. Assert your independence, and preserve the integrity of your result, by placing them upon the table in the dish in which they were cooked. Let the servant pass around the empty china, if you wish, to assure the family or guest that you have it. And have enough left to know the luxury of cold beans that have a heart in them! Thus shall one of our glorious New England institutions be restored, to add lustre to the centennial year.—Golden Rule.

At the Democratic meeting last night one of the speakers, we don't remember that it was not Mr. Hobbs, sent off a magnificent burst of eloquence, some thing like a drench blowing up. It would have been a thorough effort had not the falling out of his false teeth somewhat marred the effect. He said: "Men of the republic, stay down at last upon the struggling freemen who for years have borne upon their patient necks the yoke of the oppressor and the burden of the most infamous and malignant dogmatism that ever crunched gasp like blood from the hearts of a liberty loving and patriotic people. Rise up, O my fellow citizens, and hurl the tyrant from his throne." At this point the audience rose up and smiled, and the orator stopped and hunted up his teeth and resumed his speech in the English language.—Burlington Hawkeye.

An exchange says: "A fat man can sit on the thumb-nail of the statue of the Goddess of Liberty to be erected in New York Harbor by the Frenchmen. But no pure-minded Goddess of Liberty wants a man sitting on her thumb-nail."

BEFORE AND AFTER.

Some time ago there lived in our city a young gentleman and lady who, for convenience's sake, we will call Ned and Kitty. They were frequently seen together exhibiting unmistakable signs of tender attachment which was fast leading them to the vortex of matrimony.

Buggy riding was a favorite pastime with the young lovers, and there was scarcely a woodland glen or a prairie flower for miles around here that did not, at some time, witness their happy love making as they rode by, or stopped a moment to bill and coo and exchange vows.

When the young man wanted a buggy he invariably wrote about as follows to the lively man:

Mr. Mc—Please send the narrow-seated buggy to my door at 6 o'clock P. M., and oblige yours, Ned.

P. S.—If you can't send the narrow-seated buggy, don't send any. Nxm. In the course of time they were married, and a few weeks after the event transpired, Ned presented himself at Mr. Mc's office and told him that he wished to take Mrs. Ned to the country for a few days' recreation, and desired him to get ready a buggy.

"All right, old boy: I'm glad to see you around again, but I can't let you have your favorite buggy."

"Which?"

"Why the narrow-seated rig, of course."

"Never mind it, Mc; that one will do," and he pointed to a buggy that two persons might have sat in with a yard's space between them.—Waco Patriot.

EVERY DAY RELIGION.—We must come back to our point, which is, not to urge all of you to give yourselves up to mission work, but to serve God more and more in connection with your daily calling. I have heard that a woman who has a mission makes a poor wife and a bad mother; this is very possible, and at the same time very lamentable, but the mission I would urge is not of this sort. Dirty rooms, slatternly gowns, and children with unwashed faces are swift witnesses against the sincerity of those who keep others vineyard and neglect their own. I have no faith in that woman who tells of grace and glory abroad, and uses no soap and water at home. Let the buttons be on the shirts, let the children's socks be mended, let the roast mutton be done to a turn, let the house be as neat as a new pin, and the home be as happy as home can be. Serve God by doing common actions in a heavenly spirit, and then, if your daily calling only leaves you cracks and crevices of time fill these up with holy service.—Spurgeon.

British manufacturers are complaining that the street cars used there are made in the United States because the British mechanics cannot do the work properly; the iron girders for the Central Station in Glasgow are being constructed in Belgium; some of the Sheffield steel manufacturers are leaving the country; and American cotton goods can be exported from a Liverpool cheaper than those of English make can be from Manchester.

"Speaking of bathing," said Mrs. Partington, from behind the steam that arose from her tea as a veil to her blushes when speaking upon a delicate subject, "some can bathe with perfect impunity in water as cold as Greenland's icy mountains and India's coral strands; but, for my part, I prefer to have the water a little tepid."

"I've often seen men," said a veteran general, who could stand a fire of shell or canister without showing any sign of uneasiness; but I never yet saw a man who could sit in a room where a bottle of soda was about to be opened without screwing up his eyes and looking nervous."

"So," said a lady, recently, to an Aberdeen merchant, "your pretty daughter has married a rich husband."

"Well," slowly replied the father, "I believe she has married a rich man, but I understand he is a very poor husband."

"How is Mr. Van derbilt this morning?" asked a New York reporter of a little girl on the great money king's footsteps. "He ain't any better, and he ain't worse," was the reply of the youthful heiress: "he stays jes where he am."

This is an age of sudden changes.—The girl who is picking up Autumn leaves this Fall, may be picking up cod-fish a year hence for a short-haired man with a wart on his nose.—Dumby News.

Those who come to you to talk about others, are the ones who go to others to talk about you.

THE EMMA MINE REVEALED.—A Chicago letter to the Tribune says: The lady after whom the Emma mine is named is a boarding pupil at Miss Grant's finishing school for young ladies, in North Dearborn street, an aristocratic stone mansion, with an air of exclusive gentility about it. She is a tall blonde, with a satin-smooth, ivory-tinted skin, and light, waving brown hair, which was coiled in a loose, classic knot at the back. Her dress was a simple Marie Louise blue. A long scarf of black lace was tied about her throat. She was guileless of the smallest piece of jewelry, and her long slender fingers were adorned by a single ring. A soft fringe of curling hair outlined a low, brown forehead. This was Emma Chisholm, sole daughter of the house and heart of Robert Bruce Chisholm, of Elgin, Ill., a few years ago half owner of the Emma mine, now a retired capitalist. I explained my visit to Miss Chisholm, who laughed merrily and said:

"Well, I have always eluded an interview, and all those newspaper reports have been solicited from papa and the boys. I found the notoriety unpleasant at first, but I do not mind it now. Three years ago I visited the mine, and I enjoyed the trip very much, especially the ride from Salt Lake City to Alta, the little town at the mine. I found the miners enjoying a brand of cigars called 'The Little Emma', and they actually had my picture on the box!"

The young lady laughed merrily at the recollection. She further added that she was only ten years old when her brother William named the mine after her as a voluntary peace offering, as she was constantly importuning him to "come home to his dear Emma." She was born in eastern Minnesota, May 6, 1869.

A SUFFERER.—A few mornings ago, a recently arrived stranger from New York, who had been out for a stroll, came back to the hotel rubbing his eyes and very much disgusted. He took occasion to observe to the clerk: "You have a great deal of dust here in Philadelphia?"

"Yes," drawled the clerk; "I suffer demphably from it myself."

"Weak eyes?" inquired the sympathetic stranger.

"Hardly any."

"Your lungs are affected, then?"

"Not to speak of," yawned the clerk.

"In what way, then, do you suffer from the dust?" asked the stranger, somewhat surprised.

"By hearing about forty fools say, a thousand times a day, 'You have a great deal of dust here in Philadelphia.'"

Madam X. thinks of going to the circus, and her servant-girl tries to dissuade her.

"If I were you, madam, I would not go."

"Why?"

"O, they have a horse that stops before the most foolish person in the audience, and suppose he should stop before you?"

Winter is coming again, and the bewildered populace of Rhode Island will get up early in the morning and hastily empty their lakes over into the adjoining State and scuttle back into the house before the Connecticut police or the Massachusetts people are awake. War will grow out of this thing before many years.—Burlington Hawkeye.

A maiden lady said to her little nephew: "Now, Johnny, you go to bed early, and always do so, and you'll be rosy cheeks and handsome when you grow up." Johnny thought over this a few minutes, and then observed: "Well, aunt, you must have set up a good deal when you were young."

"Well, my dear," said our good pastor at Sunday school to a towheadedurchin, "I am glad to hear you are getting to be a better boy."

"Why, sir," said little Joe, looking up with grave earnestness, "God I ain't been sick."

Said a woman speaker in a New Haven suffrage meeting, "Women is every respect the equal of man. Her reputation for heroic bravery—" at that point a mouse ran into sight, and the orator jumped on the table and screamed.

Physical cleanliness, moral purity and elevation of character are closely connected; while tidiness in dress is strongly allied to strict justice and fitness of action.

Horny hands, browned and toughened by labor, are more honorable than white ones that never reached out to help a fellow creature, or add a dollar to the wealth of the world.

The word of God is the music; every heart, though there be hundreds and hundreds of them, is like a whole with out robbing his neighbor.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—Our Markleville neighbors are already making preparations for a Christmas Tree Festival, and desire the co-operation of the citizens of the county generally. The young folks of Silver Mountain have been talking of having one here, but no conclusion has been reached. If we have no Tree here the Marklevilleans will cordially welcome our citizens to their entertainment. They have selected J. J. Rice, of Silver Mountain, T. E. Rutter, of Monitor, and Henry Merrill, of Woodford, selected to receive presents and transmit them to the Committee at Markleville.

NATIVES.—The entire Lo family—natives, babies, maidens, the old and the young, the blind and the crippled—are rusticated on the outskirts of our town—having crossed the mountains from West Point with their winter stock of acorns. Our citizens are initiating the backs into the mysteries of wood-hopping, while the squaws utilize their time visiting our palatial residences seeking for "biscent lah poo." To supply their wants in this line it would be necessary to have here a branch of Black's Sacramento Cracker Bakery.

A BARGAIN.—The Schenectady (Tarrish) Mill, at Monitor, was sold on Monday last by Sheriff Scott on a judgment obtained against the Schenectady Company by B. E. Hunter, of Monitor. It was purchased by Mr. Hunter for the amount of judgment and costs—$6,544.25. This is a well appointed mill and cost about $100,000. As the stockholders are fighting among themselves it is not probable that the Company will redeem it. We are surprised that the Advance Company did not buy it, as it is within a stone's throw of their mine.

THE I X L MILL.—This mill is rapidly approaching completion. The building is mostly enclosed; the boilers have been set, and the engine will be put up next week. The pans, separators, etc., are being placed in position, and the entire work is being pushed by Mr. Arnot, the contractor, who desires to take every advantage of the present fine weather. It is Mr. Arnot's intention to have the mill in working order by New Year's Day.

BIG TREES ROAD.—Our Senior, who left for Sacramento on Monday last, by way of the Big Trees road, writes us from Murphy's on Tuesday that there is no impediment to travel on that road, the snow being but six inches deep on the summit, and bare most of the way to Blood's. He went over in a one-horse buggy and was only eight hours going to Blood's, which shows that the road is still in good order, notwithstanding it is so late in the season.

LADY FRANKLIN.—This shaft—a two-compartment—is down about fifty feet, but only thirty feet timbered. The shaft-building is finished, and contains all the shaft timbers that will be required during the winter. The shaft is going down as fast as possible without machinery.

ON THE GROUND.—All the machinery for the I X L Mill, now being erected just below our town, has been received from the Vulcan Iron Works, San Francisco. Its entire weight was 245,000 pounds.

RAIN.—On Thursday morning we had a heavy fall of rain between 7 o'clock and noon. Since then the weather has been beautiful, with every indication of its continuing so.

OFFICIAL.—The canvass of the official vote of this county does not vary the result as published in our last issue. Every man on the Republican ticket received a like majority—45.

PROBATE.—In the Probate Court, on Monday last, the sale of the real estate of the Erickson estate was confirmed; and also the final settlement of the Administrator of said estate, J. B. Scott.

Judge Denson, of the Sixth District Court of California, decided in the case of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California against J. G. Edwards that "the Courts of this State have no power to issue an injunction to restrain the publication of a libel in any case."

The Alle says: "The cost of the late election to the city will reach nearly $30,000, and to the Federal Government, for Marshals and Supervisors of Election, $15,000."

The Milton and Sonora stage was attacked by highwaymen on Wednesday morning, and while stopping one of the highwaymen's pistols was discharged, and the driver drove on as he saw the robber fall who held the gun on him.

The vote of this State at the late election was about 150,000.

OUR WEEK PRESIDENT.

Last week we were somewhat jubilant over the result of the election, having reasons for believing that Hayes and Wheeler were elected, but the result is not really known yet. All eyes are now turned to little Florida with her 4 votes. The Tildenites have virtually surrendered Louisiana and South Carolina, and made Florida the "last ditch," but, judging from the following address to the people of the United States, they have little to hope for from that quarter, and Monday's mail will probably bring us the final result, and that Ruford B. Hayes is the coming man:

TALLAHASSEE, November 16, 1870.—To the People of the United States: The undersigned are informed that telegrams are being sent north to-night from this State, based on tables of the majority in the Florida's extra of this afternoon, claiming that Tilden and Hendricks have carried Florida by 637 majority. An examination of these tables shows that in Alachua county alone the actual Republican majority of 717, as shown by the official canvass now on file, is reduced to 498 by leaving out certain precincts, voted on false pretence of fraud, and that in no other ways the actual figures have been changed so as to give an apparent Tilden majority. The undersigned are satisfied, from careful examination in detail of the returns already received, that allowing the Democrats all the majorities now claimed in counties kept back by them, returns from the whole State will show a majority for Hayes and Wheeler. This majority can be largely increased upon simple proof of Democratic frauds and intimidation. The Republicans of Florida are not devoting themselves to manufacturing public opinion at the North, but convinced that the State has been carried for Hayes and Wheeler, they await with perfect confidence the result of a fair and impartial canvass, which they are sure will carry full conviction to the people of the country. (Signed): J. M. THORNBURG, T. W. OSBORNE, M. E. CHANDLER, M. MARTIN, J. R. C. EMMERS.

A Herald's Columbia, South Carolina, special says a rough calculation made official returns from twenty-eight counties at the office of the Republican Secretary of State, and an estimate on the vote on Governor of the four remaining counties, give Hayes about 1,000 majority over Tilden. The same authority gives the State to Hampton by about 1,200 majority. The Republicans now concede the election of Hampton on the face of the returns, but claim that the remainder of the Republican State ticket is elected.

The following are the Republican States, giving Hayes 181 Electoral votes: Pennsylvania 29, Ohio 22, Illinois 21, California 7, New Hampshire 3, Maine 3, Massachusetts 11, South Carolina 8, Rhode Island 5, Colorado 3, Nebraska 3, Oregon 3, Nevada 3, Minnesota 3, Kansas 3, Wisconsin 5, Michigan 10, Louisiana 8.

The following States voted for Tilden: Alabama 9, Arkansas 7, Connecticut 5, Delaware 3, Georgia 5, Indiana 11, Kentucky 15, Maryland 12, Mississippi 8, Missouri 15, New York 35, New Jersey 9, North Carolina 10, Tennessee 12, Texas 8, Virginia 11, West Virginia 5.

A total of 184 votes. In the scales Florida 4. The Department of Admissions to the Centennial Exhibition has just finished the count of visitors to the grounds during the six months extending from May 10 to November 10. The exhibition was opened 159 days, and during that time the paid admissions were 8,004,325 and the free admissions 1,785,087, making the total admissions 9,789,412. The total receipts were $3,813,783.75; the average daily total admissions were 61,568, and the average daily receipts were $23,935.85.

The pool-room proprietors in New York announce that they will pay no bets until the result is absolutely known, probably on the 4th of March. In the meantime something like $4,000,000 are locked up.

The Centennial Board of Finance will sell by public auction on the 30th of November all the buildings erected from their funds. All buildings sold to be removed from the Park except the Main Building.

It is not unusual for patients suffering from diseases for which sulphur baths are recommended, to travel thousands of miles to avail themselves of sulphur bathing. They would find it less expensive to buy GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP and bathe at home. Sold everywhere.

The editor of the Pioche Record regretfully remarked: "Losing an election does more to disgust men with politics than all the schemes of fraud and corruption ever unearthed."

THE MAJORITIES

The following are the corrected returns of the late election in this State. In many counties it will be seen that the vote was very close. We give the majorities only. The result of the contest in the Fourth District for Congress is still in doubt, the friends of Pacheco, however, claim his election by a small majority:

GOING TO THE MINT.

The San Francisco Bulletin of November 13th says: On Friday morning two Irish servant girls, employed in a well-known boarding house in this city, were busily engaged in cleaning a pair of handsome bay windows, just put in, when one of them remarked to the other, in the hearing of the mistress of the house, "What a pity it is, Mary, that we shall have to leave so soon after they have put in those fine windows." "You don't mean to say you are going to leave us, do you, Bridget?" asked the mistress, half alarmed at the prospect of suddenly losing her servants. "O yes, marm," Bridget replied. "You see now that Mister Tilden has been elected President we're going into the Mint."

For the last two or three elections, says the San Francisco Bulletin, native Californians have been making their appearance in the ball-rooms of the city in small numbers. But at the last election a whole brigade of these youngsters, estimated at 2,500, marched to be registered. At the next election, calculated to call out a full vote they will make a small army. The number of young men in this city at this time who are on the verge of legal age must be very large. For this reason we may expect to see for some time our registration going up by sudden and startling bounds.

A New Stock Board has been recently organized in San Francisco under the name of the Nevada Stock Exchange. This makes the fourth Stock Board in that city.

AN UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENT.

The strongest argument which can be urged against the advisability of administration such as arsenic and nerve-debilitating poisons as arsenic and quinine for intermittent and remittent fevers, is the vasty superior success in the prevention and cure of such diseases of a medicine which is the very antipode of the above named drugs, both in respect of its composition and the results wrought by it. Such a medicine is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a purely vegetable preparation, which not only cures with wonderful promptitude every trace of fever and ague, and kindred types of malarious disease, from the system, but is a certain preventive of all malarious diseases, and their continued use entails consequences highly pernicious to the system. The Bitters, on the contrary, not only afford speedy relief, but establish health on a permanent basis.

THE FIRST CHINESE VOTE.—A naturalized Chinaman deposited the first Mongolian ballot ever voted in this State on election day, in one precinct in the Fourth Ward. When he presented his ballot, properly folded, to Charles Gough, who was Inspector, the latter challenged his vote, whereupon the Celestial citizen removed his hat and answered the questions proposed without hesitation. He swore that he had been naturalized two years and a half ago, in the Fifteenth District Court, and that he had lived thirty days in the ward. After his vote had been dropped in the box, he laughingly produced his naturalization papers. He was asked by a great many persons whom he had voted for, but resisted every endeavor to draw him out, steadfastly refusing to expose the character of his politics.—S. F. Chronicle.

A FIFTEEN PER CENT.—A Piste Indian was yesterday exhibiting on South O street a live rattlesnake, which he seemed to have under perfect control. The reptile seemed to be in a state of stupor, or an almost torpid condition. The Indian carried the "rattler" in the side pocket of his coat, and handled him most recklessly. A gentleman happening to say that the poisonous fangs of the snake were probably extracted, the Indian pulled open the mouth of the reptile and showed that they were still intact. The Indian said: "You catch me any one snake, in one hour he no bite you."—Virginia Enterprise.

CENTENNIAL

GRAND TRIUMPH FOR

WEBER

Pianos!

First Premium over all American and Foreign Manufacturers.

Copy of a Telegram received by Sherman & Hyde:

New York, Sept. 29th, 1876—Received the highest award for sym-phetic, pure, and rich tone, combined with greatest power, as shown in the three styles—Grand, Square, and Upright Pianos—which show intelligence and solidity in their construction, a pliant and easy touch, which at the same time answers promptly to its requirements, together with excellence of workmanship.

A. WEBER.

Never before in the history of piano forte manufacture has an instrument risen so rapidly in popular favor.

Its intrinsic merit and decided superiority over all others has caused every musician and artist of note to adopt and recommend it.

Nelson says, "I shall take every opportunity to recommend and praise your instruments."

Miss Kellogg says, "Your Pianos are my choice for the concert room and my own house."

Lucca says, "Your uprights are extraordinary instruments, and deserve their great popularity."

Patti says, "I have used the Pianos of every celebrated maker, but give yours the preference over all."

Strauss says, "Your Pianos astonish me. I have never seen any Pianos which equal yours."

Wehl says, "Madame Parpa called your Pianos the finest in the United States. I fully endorse that opinion. They have no rival."
